About Us

The Greater New Orleans Youth Orchestras (GNOYO) has been recognized both locally and nationally for its commitment to music education.

Now in its twenty-fifth season, GNOYO provides young musicians the opportunity to participate in a high-quality full orchestra program. Participants significantly improve individual performance and ensemble skills, while developing professional attitudes and discipline, which empower them to take initiative in their schools and community and to pursue individual and team excellence in all life endeavors.

To encourage the broadest participation possible GNOYO has five orchestras with more than 200 musicians aged seven to nineteen. As an independent non-profit organization, GNOYO attracts participants from as far as 120 miles away! GNOYO is committed to making its program accessible to all area youth, regardless of their families' financial capabilities.

Touring Matters!

Touring has become a traditional part of the Greater New Orleans Youth Orchestras experience since its Carnegie Hall debut in 2009. The Symphony, as standard bearer of our youth orchestral organization, has been heard internationally with resounding response and success.

Tours are an important extension of their students' musical education, a valuable milestone in their growth towards a wider view of the world. The Symphony benefits from the increased number of concerts because audiences attending tour concerts are often the most enthusiastic the orchestra has ever played for, they inspire a level of performance surprising the musicians themselves.

Performing internationally contributes to a profound experience for members of the orchestra, one which could not be gained at home. Each concert becomes important in a deeply personal way and music as an international language becomes very real.
